

1. Highlights

- 1.1 Your privacy matters. We want you to understand how We use the personal data you provide to Us.
- 1.2 We collect and process data about you. We have put in place new measures to help Us to manage the current threat to health of the Corona Virus (Covid-19), enhancing Our usual business practices. Through these new measures, we will collect and process your personal data, including certain sensitive personal data relating to your health. This will help Us to ensure the health and safety of all those onboard, including you and your travelling companions, Our employees and other third parties such as service providers. Some of the measures will also enable public authorities to control the spread of the virus.

2. Who is responsible for your personal data referenced in this Privacy Notice?

- 2.1 References to “We”, “Us” or “Our” in this privacy policy are references to Royal Caribbean Cruises (Asia) Pte Ltd with registered office address at 3 Anson Road #13-02, Springleaf Tower, Singapore 079909, the company which is responsible for the collection, use, disclosure, storage and other processing of your personal data by Royal Caribbean, Celebrity Cruises, Azamara Club Cruises or any of our brands.

3. Health checks and health measures: What personal data We collect and how We use it

- 3.1 Health Questionnaires and Health Screening. Before your cruise, We collect certain information about your age, medical history and current health to make sure that you are healthy enough to cruise and to try to identify symptoms of Covid-19. We collect this information in stages to ensure that it is accurate and up to date. We collect this data from you and We rely on your honesty. We may collect information at the point of purchase of your cruise ticket, through the online check in process, and via the app which can be used if you find that you have any Covid-19 symptoms when you are onboard. We may ask you additional questions about your health at the terminal prior to embarkation, and We may also require that you undertake a medical examination, all to ensure that you are healthy enough to travel. We may also repeat some or all of these screening measures at debarkation and/or embarkation in ports of call, and at the point of debarkation at the end of your cruise.
- 3.2 Temperature Checks. We may test your temperature before embarkation, and we will take your temperature once a day when you are onboard Our ships. We may also take your temperature at debarkation and/or embarkation in ports of call. This may be by asking you to walk through a temperature scanner, or a member of staff or a service provider may take your temperature personally using a thermometer. This is to try to identify symptoms of Covid-19.
- 3.3 Tests for Covid-19. We may ask you to undertake a test to identify whether you have Covid-19 or whether you have already had Covid-19 and have recovered from it. We may ask you to take this test at home, at a test centre and/or We may require that you take this test at the port before embarkation. We may also require you to take such a test when onboard. Again, these tests are used to identify people who have or who have had Covid-19, to seek to prevent spread of the virus and in order to comply with applicable laws and regulatory requirements.

- 3.4 Contact Tracing: Wearables. We will require you to participate in our contact tracing program as a part of which you may need to wear a wearable device. This device will identify the device number of any other individual with whom you are in close contact during your cruise, and approximate information about your location onboard the ship. By 'in close contact', we mean within six feet of each other for a period of 15 minutes or more. If someone reports Covid-19 symptoms, the information We hold will then be analyzed to help Us identify all those other individuals with whom the reporter has been in close contact onboard, including using the processes described in section 3.5 below. We are then able to invite individuals who We identify as having been in close contact with the reporter to take the appropriate next steps, which may be to monitor their own health, remain in their stateroom for a period of time, and/or come to the medical bay for an examination or test as appropriate. We will use the information We collect from the wearables only for the purposes of preventing the spread of communicable disease. You may be invited to choose an enhanced product which will replace the wearable and which can also operate as a SeaPass card. Additional personal data is collected by this enhanced product, and more details will be provided as and when you are invited to use it.
- 3.5 Contact Tracing: Identification and Mitigation Information. We may also use personal data within Our system to identify those individuals who have been in close contact when we suspect that an individual may have Covid-19. As above, by 'in close contact', we mean within six feet of each other for a period of 15 minutes or more. This system uses information about where you have been onboard and when. We capture this information in our onboard systems, when for example, you scan your SeaPass card to purchase a drink at a café, for example, when you visit the Guest Relations desk, and when you dine in a particular restaurant. If someone reports Covid-19 symptoms, the information We hold will then be analyzed to help Us identify all those other individuals with whom they have been in close contact onboard. We are then able to invite individuals who We identify as having been in close contact with that individual to take the appropriate next steps, which may be to monitor their own health, remain in their stateroom for a period of time, and/or come to the medical bay for an examination or test as appropriate.

4. Legal basis for the processing of your personal data

- 4.1 We process your personal data in accordance with the terms of this policy in order to meet Our legal obligations; because it is necessary to do so to protect the vital interests of Our guests, crew and service providers; because it is necessary for the purposes of preventive health care and occupational medicine; and because it is necessary for reasons of public interest in the areas of public health, including protecting against serious cross-border threats to health and ensuring high standards of quality and safety of health care.

5. Who we share your personal data with

- 5.1 We may share your personal data with third parties in your country of origin and in the countries of your travel destinations, as required. Those third parties include:
- (a) public authorities including in particular port authorities;
 - (b) health authorities; and
 - (c) health care providers.

Please note that the information we share with these third parties may include information collected through our health checks, including testing results. Certain third parties, particularly health authorities, may contact you in relation to that information.

- 5.2 In order to facilitate the cruise, We may also share your personal data with other companies within the Royal Caribbean Group (Royal Caribbean, Celebrity Cruises, and Azamara Cruises), and with Our business partners and third party service providers, including for example port agents and tour operators, who assist Us in the provision and administration of the processes described in this policy.
