sizes and postures.

Wat Sisaket: is one of the most important temples in Laos and known as the only temple that survived the Siamese occupation that destroyed Vientiane in 1828. It was restored in 1924 and subsequently in 1930. The architecture of the temple has some Siamese influence but is mostly based on Laos design. All in all, the temple contains more than 5,000 Buddha statues in various

Wat Hor Prakeo: was used as the royal chapel of the Lao Monarchy, but more importantly it was built to house the Emerald Buddha.

That Luang Stupa: is a the centre establishment, suggested undergone several 1930s due to foreign regarded as the most and a national symbol.

gold-covered large Buddhist stupa in of Vientiane, Laos. Since its initial to be in the 3rd century, the stupa has reconstructions as recently as the invasions of the area. It is generally important national monument in Laos

Patuxay: is well known as Vientiane's own Arc de Triumph, a war monument dedicated to those who fought for the independence from France, located at the end of Lang Xang avenue, in the heart of Vientiane.

Buddha Park: was built in 1958 by Luang Pu Bunleua Sulilat, a monk who studied both Buddhism and Hinduism. This explains why his park is full not only of Buddha images but also of Hindu gods as well as demons and animals from both beliefs.
