Los Glaciares National Park has been declared to be Mankind Heritage by the UNESCO (National Park fee included). These glaciers, about 47 of them, show a work of 10 thousand years ago. The most famous is Perito Moreno Glacier, located in the extreme south - west of Lago Argentino, 80km/50miles away from Calafate. It was named after the great Argentine explorer from the 19th Century and it is one of the few advancing glaciers, that is why, it has become a major amazing landscape in South America. Every certain time, from its front walls of 60mts/196ft high fall down giant blocks of ice, as big as buildings, into the waters of Brazo Rico or Canal de los Tempanos (Icebergs Canal) and finally gets to the main part of the lake. However, there's more! The advancing of the glacier does it approach to Peninsula Magallanes, on the opposite side of the lake, where there are balconies to be able to enjoy it. The cycle takes between 4 to 6 years and divides the lake into two parts.
