The Saadian Tombs with their delicate decorations and pure architectural lines which considered by many to be a beautiful feat of architecture. The Menara Gardens. Covering an area of 250 acres full of olive trees surrounding a large central lake that dates back from the 12th century. Continue our sightseeing to the Djemaa el-Fna, Marrakech's main square. You arrive at the village of Imlil, an important provisioning base for those going on treks into the mountains. Here we leave the vehicle and either walk or ride a mule the remaining few minutes up the valley to Kasbah Du Toubkal. Their freshness is incomparable and the atmosphere forever engraved in your memory... Then, return to town through the Bab El Marsa gate. The Sqala of the Kasbah, the artillery platform on the ramparts, offers from its north bastion an incomparable view across the medina, a UNESCO-listed World Heritage Site, over the port's Sqala and out over the ocean. Leave the old European canons and walk towards the casemates that lead to the street. Some of the Kingdom's most famous marquetry craftsmen and cabinet makers have founded their workshops there. They work on the wood of the sandarac tree and are deserving of your visit: their work is of a rare intricacy. You will easily find the object that will eternally symbolize Essaouira.
